Here's our extensive list of topics to talk about along with sample questions for each topic. You'll have no trouble finding something to talk about! You'll find that most people will have at least some things to say about each of these topics. Once you stumble upon something interesting or something they are interested in, keep talking about that for a while. Branch off from your initial topic and ask follow up questions about whatever they seem interested in.

Tech topics to talk about. Our lives are filled with tech. We are surrounded by it. So these tech topics to talk about will probably appeal to whoever you are talking with even if they aren't super into tech. That being said, if the person you are talking to seems a bit clueless about tech, you might want to switch to another topic.

Charity is becoming more and more popular even among young people. Thousands of teenagers and students help people around. Why not organize a lesson about charity then? Here are some of the ideas.

Task 1 "Warm-up. Unusual warm-ups work best with teens (you know, they're harder to involve).

Teens usually love music and visit concerts. During the lockdown, charity live streams became a trend. So it would be great to discuss them. Possible questions: How can singers help people during the Pandemic? Did you watch any of the online concerts?

Suggest that your student do some good during the most wonderful time of the year. Ask him/her whether he/she wants to help children, retired people, or animals and ask to write a plan. This task is easier to organize in groups. Start by marking "How To Say It to Teens: Talking About the Most Important Topics of Their Lives" as Want to Read: Want to Read saving!

Some people say traveling makes you more interesting. Well, it definitely gives you something to talk about.

33. What are you best at? Nobody likes to brag but sometimes people just need to be asked the question to tell you all about their special skills.

34. Are you afraid of a particular thing/person? You know that moment when you meet your crush but you don't know how to start a conversation with them? Well, what you need are a few brilliant things to talk about with your crush . Here are the 14 best things to talk about with your crush:

40. What Would Your Parents Be Surprised To Learn About You? Everyone has their favorite celebrity, but would your crush trade their lives with them? Ask this question to find out.

52. What fictional character reminds you most of yourself? Since teens are transitioning between being their parents' children and being independent adults, these years are a good time to talk about what is most important to them, and how they want to live the rest of their lives. If you have a personal motto, share it with your students. If you feel comfortable, explain why you chose this particular motto and how it affects your life. For example, I might share with my students some of my personal words to live by: "Don't make decisions based on fear," "God comes first" and "Live by the Golden Rule." Give your students this list of personal mottos or
