In the period leading up to the Second World War, much of crime writing was done in the form of a short story. The two writers who can be regarded as the founding fathers of the detective story, Edgar Allan Poe and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, were both masters of the form, and the former adumbrated most of the distinguishing features not only of the short story, but of the crime novel: the least likely suspect as murderer, the closed-room mystery, the case solved by. One dies or one survives, and the medicine is time, not a change of scene. I went through my preliminary training in a mood of grim determination to see it through, but when my grandmother's invitation came, just six weeks before Christmas, I accepted with relief. It solved a problem for me. from James McCowan family from 1833: being a story of the settlement of the James McCowan family in Scarboro, Ontario James McCowan(1773-1834) His 2 1/2 year marriage to Catherine Stoddert ended with her death in 1804 at the age of twenty. In September of 1813, James married Margaret Porteous (1788-1866) who had lived at Auchanbegg as a child. In December of that year, a son Robert(1813-1886) was born to Elizabeth Paterson, fathered by James and he took him into his home.
