Description:

One quiet evening, Frances the badger is sitting under the kitchen sink, singing a little song, "Here are the buckets and brushes and me, / Plinketty, plinketty, plinketty, plee." When she stops singing to listen for parental coos of approval, she hears nothing. Frances is sure it's all her new baby sister's fault. It's why she has no raisins for her cereal, and it's why her new dress isn't ready for her to wear to school. She thinks she may run away after dinner. And she does! She takes her carefully packed knapsack and settles in under the dining-room table.

As she sits sulking and eating cookies, her mother and father, fully aware of her presence, begin talking about how much they miss her, and how much they love her little songs, and how a family is everybody all together, not just a baby. Frances can't stand it anymore. She calls them from her imaginary telephone and tells them she'll be home soon. Russell Hoban and illustrator Lillian Hoban succeed again with a tender, comical, heartwarming story that will make any big brother or sister feel better about a new sibling in the house. A BABY SISTER FOR FRANCES~ SWEET SIBLING STORY Â« Â« This story from the "Frances"™ series, tells about the arrival of Frances™ new baby sister, and the various changes around the house, and her conflicting feelings toward having a new sister. Frances believes that since her new baby sister has arrived, she has not been getting the same amount of attention. Of course, her parents are attending to her needs, but Frances doesn't understand this. She decides to run away and packs her little knap sack and leaves, but not to far; she hides underneath the dining room table.
