Globalization 4.0 is at hand. A new phase of globalization driven by shifts in technology, geopolitics, and social and environmental needs, it will require concerted governance from multiple levels - corporate, national and international. This white paper represents the World Economic Forum's call for engagement from stakeholders across globe and across societal and enterprise domains. In order to meet the challenges of Globalization 4.0, global actors must begin and sustain a dialogue that leads to a strengthening of global governance architecture, the multilateral system that has benefited t Specifics of problems of globalization are multidimensional. Globalization in its modern manifestation appears as multi-level and multilateral system of various integration manifestations. Thus, it is possible to mark out its aspects: global communication, global economy, global policy, global culture, global science, global language, global conduct of life. Globalization of economies represents creation of a single zone where goods freely move, services, information, the equity where the ideas extend and their carriers move freely, development of modern financial and credit institutes is stim See what's new with book lending at the Internet Archive.
