Both sets of standards cover tissue banking in general and are then designed to have specific sections for each tissue, but in the case of E.A.T.B. only the sperm banking specialised section has been completed. The A.A.T.B. document is considerably more complex than the E.A.T.B. one and the aim of this chapter is to give an outline of the topics covered in these standards. Since the web is an important resource of information for millions of people at all levels, accessible websites can help people with disabilities too to participate and contribute more actively in society.
